2. Pair It with the Story

3. Build a Pocket
or Tuck

4. Add
a Story Note

Borrowed papers can become part of your own story world.

Opening the Story

A new piece finds its way into the Blue Box. As Grace gathers the remnants of letters and keepsakes, she tucks in beautiful papers from beyond her own correspondence. A floral scrap, a quiet plaid, or a tree study can become part of the archive—showing how your journals can blend the stories you love with pieces that spark your own.

Using Natalie's Printables

- Try a floral print for a pocket or fold-out.
- Use plaid or neutral papers as layering pieces.
- Add the tree page behind a fragment or note.
- Tuck in fussy cuts as labels or embellishments.

Make It Your Own

- Mix Blue Box pieces with outside papers.
- Let one image inspire a new memory or scene.
- Adapt it for Eleanor, Grace, or your own journal world.
- Your story does not have to match mine.
